Ambience Home Design was commissioned to design and furnish a five bedroom villa in the well-known area of Los Monteros.

"The whole idea behind this project was to convert a traditional and rustic Spanish villa, into a high-end rental property with a contemporary and luxurious interior to accommodate its guests. The owner had his first guests already booked in, so the challenge was to do a 360° makeover to the property in 6 weeks time from design concept, until full delivery and installation. So pressure was on."

The concept throughout the living areas was to use a combination of greys, taupes and a splash of yellow for accent. As you walk in to the villa, Françoise Nielly artwork fills the wall and gives the entrance hall a splash of colour. Ambience cleverly used a kidney-shaped sofa to follow the curving staircase and create a reception area for guests.

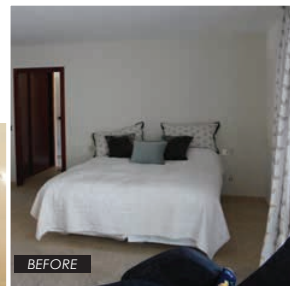

Coming into the lounge, a plain deep grey sofa gives the room a slick look, coupled with textured scatter cushions and appointed accessories, as key elements to complete the design scheme. Elegant white voiles dress the windows and add a fresh feel.

"The large and spacious terrace area called for some big pieces to fill the space," says Andrea Böck. "We wanted to create an indoor-outdoor feel and bring as much comfort to the covered terrace. To achieve this, we chaptered the sitting area with an oversized outdoor carpet, and made two sitting areas divided by a chaise-longue. The oversized piping also gave the sofas a timeless look. We opted for some metal hammered coffee tables and colourful scatter cushions for a shabby chic approach."

"The outdoor dining area needed a stunning piece and we wanted to create contrast. For this we used our massive wooden dining table that we brought from Bali." The table base was designed by Ambience and made by Messeg Design. Ambience creates contrast by using these romantic acrylic fume see-through armchairs.

"We wanted to give the bedrooms a fresh yet romantic feel, so each room was designed to take an upholstered headboard and beautiful scatter cushions against stark white linen."

HOME COUTURE

In one of the bedrooms, we used a chocolate velvety fabric on a chesterfield headboard and beautiful tall horn lamps from South Africa. We chaptered the beds with shagpile carpets and chose luxurious throws from Zinc and patterned textured scatters cushions to complete the design and give a plush feel.

In the master bedroom we played with light gold tones and velvety textures. Silk mint greens on scatter cushions to bring colour in.
